With the American First Army in Belgium, Jan. 8 (Delayed) (AP)—Foxhole flash: Pinup girl, pictures are now known everywhere along his frozen front as "foxhole heaters."

Lt. Col. Andy A. Lipscomb of Bessemer, Ala., picks as "the fightingest man on the battlefield" Staff Sgt. Warren Ritchie, 24, of Fredricksburg, Pa. Ritchie killed nine Germans and took 14 prisoners in cleaning out a German pillbox singlehanded. He just reported as "shot a few" at 500 yards and the rest "closer up."

One group of doughboys got their nap jacks still warm from shrapnel. Two privates were carrying them up in a thermos when a shell landed and smashed the jug, scattering the napjacks over the landscape. Carrying out the slogan "the chow must go through," the two privates slicked themselves up, assembled all the frazzled napjacks they could find and delivered them on schedule.

Claims 56 Germans

One American soldier not only hit a German tank with a bazooka shell—he hit it with the bazooka itself. He was firing so fast that the lad who was helping him load forgot to raise the catch on the rocket, so that when he fired both shell and weapon left his hands. His buddies say Pvt. Frank A. Babiniak, Lansford, Pa., had a field day in the first day of combat. They credit him with 28 "confirmed" dead Germans and as many "probables."

Another Second Infantry Division doughboy, Pvt. Marco Albertelli of Toighkenamon, Pa., was guarding nine prisoners en route to the rear lines. One of the Germans stepped on a hidden Nazi mine. All nine of the closely grouped prisoners were killed—but Albertelli, who was following a few paces back, didn't receive a scratch.

To Mrs. Joseph Stephenson of Shreveport, La., has gone the first American flag to fly over Brest. It was sent her by her husband, Lt. Joseph Stephenson, who raised it over a hotel two days before the Nazi-held sea fortress fell.

COAL SHORTAGE PREDICTED HERE FOR FEBRUARY

The coal situation in Gettysburg was described today as "not at all good" and "critical" by local coal dealers who were questioned by The Gettysburg Times.

One dealer said that there may be enough of some type of fuel available to keep Gettysburgians warm for the remainder of this month—if they are willing and able to burn bituminous coal or coke instead of anthracite—but after the end of the month some houses may get cold unless coal is secured here at a greater rate than it has up to the present.

By nightfall today almost no anthracite will be in dealers' bins in Gettysburg, the survey showed. A total of several hundred tons of bituminous coal and coke, the remainder of a summer accumulation by one dealer, is going rapidly.

Charge Selfishness

One dealer accused some Gettysburgians of being selfish at the expense of their neighbors. "Some people call up and demand that we deliver a certain number of tons to see them out for the rest of the winter. If we did that, some of their neighbors wouldn't get any," he said.

The local coalmen are trying to stretch their almost exhausted coal supplies to reach the greatest number of customers, delivering a half ton or a ton to a house.

From the four local dealers contacted this morning, these reports were gathered:

- "Three tons of soft coal on hand. No hard coal for two or three weeks and we don't know when we'll have any more. The situation is very critical."
- "We have 15 or 20 tons of soft coal but haven't had any hard coal for several days. We could sell 75 tons of anthracite a week if we could get it."
- "We have about 20 tons of run-of-mine bituminous coal on hand and about 20 tons of hard coal but we have many more tons sold than we can deliver. We could sell 30 to 40 tons of hard coal a day if we had it but we don't know when we'll have any more."
- "The coal situation in Gettysburg is not at all good. We have a reserve of about 300 tons of soft coal and coke that is left from reserves we built up last summer. We're unloading a car of anthracite but there are five tons sold for every one we have. It will all be gone by night and the soft coal won't last through the month unless new shipments of anthracite are received"

Justice of the Peace John H. Baschore reported today that the two county men charged by the Gettysburg Fire company with blocking the road at the scene of a fire at the Mervin Benner home near the Mt. Joy Lutheran church January 1, have paid fines of $10 each and costs.

The men, Fred McDannell, Arundsville, and George Taughinbaugh, New Oxford R. 2, were charged with violating the section of the state motor vehicle code which makes it mandatory for a motorist upon hearing the horn or siren of an approaching fire truck or ambulance, to drive to the right side of the road and remain there until given a signal from a traffic officer to proceed.

The informations were filed by Chief James A. Aumen and the men had been sent 10-day notices to appear before Justice Baschore in answer to the charges.

American Girl Engaged To Italian Prisoner Of War

White Plains, N. Y., Jan. 11 (AP)—Nineteen-year-old Eva Caprari, displaying a diamond ring, says she is engaged to marry an Italian prisoner of war now interned at Chambersburg, Pa., but Army authorities indicate the marriage might constitute a violation of the Geneva convention and edicts of the provost marshal general.

Officers at nearby Fort Slocum said a prisoner of war is supposed to be returned to his own country in the same status as when captured. Conceding that the problem was new to them, they added that matters of wartime propriety and immigration also were involved.

The prisoner is Corp. Delino Rosatti, 24, who was captured in Tunis. Miss Caprari said she met him at the Chambersburg camp and had visited him several times, while Rosatti came to White Plains once on a pass.

Reports 481 Births, 180 Deaths In 1944

Ralph C. Geiselman, local registrar of vital statistics, reported today there were a total of 481 births and 180 deaths in Gettysburg and Cumberland, Straban, Freedom and Highland townships during 1944.

The reports for the districts follow: Gettysburg—243 male and 238 female births; 85 male and 58 female deaths; Cumberland township—two male and one female births; 11 male and seven female deaths; Straban township—six male and five female births; three male and 10 female deaths; Freedom township—one male and one female death; Highland township—one male birth and three female deaths.

WILL COLLECT SCRAP SUNDAYS

The Gettysburg Fire company has a balance in all its funds of $10,347.97, including $7,000 in war bonds, it was disclosed in the annual report of Treasurer Joseph E. Codori at the regular monthly meeting Wednesday evening at the engine house.

The money is divided into three funds with balances as follows: General fund, $8,266.42, including $6,500 worth of government bonds; relief fund, $1,449.64; and the kiddies Christmas party fund, $556.91, including $500 worth of war bonds.

Mr. Codori's report showed that $5,000 worth of bonds were purchased during the past year as the largest item on the $6,518.28 expense account. Receipts amounted to $4,953.29, with the largest amount, $2,471.42, coming from the Borough and committees.

The firemen voted to donate $5 to the infantile paralysis fund and to have a scrap collection Sunday afternoon, January 21, beginning at 1 o'clock. Firemen said that the last Sunday afternoon collection, conducted before Christmas, had been one of the most successful the company had ever had, and its was completed in a record time of two hours. The group decided to continue with the Sunday afternoon drives because more members can assist with the work and better results are achieved than during evening collections.

Charles Yingling was dropped from the rolls.

Included in the total were 129 office cases and 41 home visits. Of the total, 120 involved Army cases, 27 were Navy, 18 were for ex-service men and 25 were civilian cases. Seventy-nine were new contacts, 31 were reopened, 35 were recurrent while 45 were brought forward.

20 TOWNS, VILLAGES CAPTURED; NAZIS ARE FLEEING FROM BULGE

Paris, Jan. 11 (AP)—American and British troops have advanced more than three miles into the collapsing western side of the Belgian bulge from which Field Marshal von Rundstedt quickened his skilled and orderly withdrawal.

Signs today were that the Nazi commander hoped to establish a new line 15 miles or so west of the German border between Vielsalm, already entered by the U. S. First Army, Houffalize and the Bastogne sector. A dozen or more towns fell.

Nazis Withdrawing From Bulge

By latest reports, Von Rundstedt has pulled out of the toe of the Ardennes sock with all possible speed. But there was no sign of a stampede such as that in which Field Marshal von Kluge's German 7th Army was partly destroyed in the Falaise massacre in Normandy. Snow and mist gave the Nazis cover.

(The German communique announced a withdrawal from the area west of the steep-banked Ourthe river, which flows through by-passed Laroche, "in order to secure the deep flanks of the front in the Ardennes.")

The enemy claimed to have liberated several towns in Alsace-Lorraine, including Rimpling. The communique said encircled troops had been annihilated south of Erstein, 10 miles below Strasbourg, and that 300 were captured.

General Eisenhower's communique said "German attacks were repulsed in the Alsace plain between Strasbourg and Colmar," where reinforced enemy columns have struck to within ten miles of the Rhine city. U. S. Seventh Army troops stormed into Oeting, a suburb of Forbach and only five miles southwest of the wasted Saarland capital of Saarbrücken.

Take Several Towns

British Second Army troops captured half a dozen towns in the western tip of the Belgian bulge in advances of more than two miles around a 25-mile arc from by-passed Laroche to Bure. These were Roy, Harvin, Charnieux, Nassogne, Masbourg and Halleux. The westernmost still was 37 miles inside Belgium.

American First troops on the north side of the salient fought on the outskirts of Laroche and inside Vielsalm, nine miles west of St. Vith. They captured Bihain and moved 1,000 yards southward through stiff opposition to points within three miles of the Houffalize-St. Vith highway, last major German road in the bulge.

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army on the south won commanding ground outside St. Hubert, 14 miles west of Bastogne. The Germans said they had evacuated St. Hubert, their southwest anchor. Third Army troops also captured Harlange, six miles southeast of Bastogne, cutting another mile into the rough Harlange pocket where the Germans were fighting back with tanks and cannon.

Germans Not In Trouble

At no point in the bulge did Von Rundstedt appear to be in difficulty. Unless Field Marshal Montgomery on the north and Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley on the south are able to turn the Germans' guarded withdrawal into an outright retreat and slash more rapidly into the eastern sides of the bulge the wily German commander may yet win the second round of his campaign.

It did not seem assured that the Allied commanders would be able to turn the withdrawal into a rout.

Weather and terrain conspired against that. The Germans were pulling out behind a cover of fields of wooden and plastic mines, used because they were more difficult to detect than metal ones. The mines, covered by snow, considerably retarded pursuit.

With his armor bunched in a shortened arc from Houffalize back to the German border, Von Rundstedt would be able to fight an even stiffer defensive action, perhaps letting the Volksturm and Volksgrenadier infantry take over the fight along the rising ridge lines.

Indications were that the Germans were trying to form a new line all the way from Vielsalm to Houffalize to Bastogne.

Artillery Smashes Offensive

The lone German offensive gesture against the Third Army was an attempt by a large raiding party to cross the Sure river a few miles south of Echternach. Artillery smashed the force.

Third Army cages now contain 10,160 prisoners taken since December 22. The First Army had captured 15,967 since December 16.

Field dispatches indicated that Field Marshal von Rundstedt may have concentrated his strength in the vicinity of Houffalize, key road junction in the waist of the salient, now squeezed to less than nine miles.

The withdrawal was effected in the same kind of weather that protected the Von Rundstedt forces in the opening days of the winter counteroffensive.

Visibility lifted somewhat yesterday, however, permitting tactical planes to fly for the first time this week in the bulge area. A field dispatch said that up to mid-afternoon the 19th Tactical Air Force reported 252 sorties there.

Convoys Into Bulge

There were no reports of any eastward withdrawal movement beyond the mouth of the salient into Germany. On the contrary, American airmen who bombed roads, bridges and overland transport across the base of the bulge yesterday found motor convoys moving toward the salient—not away from it.

(A Stockholm dispatch quoted the Berlin correspondent of the Swedish newspaper, Aftonbladet, as writing that Von Rundstedt's salient had been narrowed to seven or eight miles in width under pressure from 34 Allied armored and infantry divisions and that

By C. YATES Mc DANIEL

General MacArthur's Headquarters, Luzon, Jan. 11 (AP)—Manila-bound American infantrymen stretched their beachhead over 22 miles of Lingayen gulf and drove inland from four key towns today toward impending major battles with Japanese reinforcements struggling north over bomb-cut roads.

Only damaging opposition came at sea where night-attacking Japanese planes and torpedo boats hit several ships in a convoy bringing up 14th Corps reinforcements.

Take 20 Towns and Airfield

On land, the Yanks seized 20 towns and villages, captured Lingayen airfield and pushed their advanced spearheads to a little more than 100 miles north of Manila. Nowhere was serious resistance reported.

Thursday's communique announced the doughboys overran the towns of San Fabian, Lingayen, Mangaldan and Dagupan in the first 24 hours and pressed inland for an average advance of four miles. Patrols were well ahead of this average penetration.

A field dispatch from Fred Hampson, Associated Press war correspondent, disclosed units of the 14th Army Corps pushing west along the coast from Lingayen, were within two miles of Port Sual. This broadened the base of the American drive to cover 22 miles of the southern Lingayen coastline.

More Troops and Supplies

The 7th Fleet continued to pour troops, armament and supplies onto the beachhead while Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita pulled his scattered Japanese divisions together, as MacArthur did in 1941 in his converging withdrawal to Bataan peninsula.

A few bomb-carrying Japanese swam or drifted among American vessels under cover of darkness in futile human-torpedo attacks on the crowded ships.

Associated Press Correspondent Al Dopping reported the Japanese approached American vessels "in slow boats, or swimming with their heads hidden under boxes, and pushing before them 'hand-made torpedoes, tiny bombs and even hand grenades.'" One hurled himself on the deck of a small craft and was blown to bits. Two others tried to blow up a destroyer by tying hand grenades to its tail.

Unloading operations went ahead without interruption despite these attacks, ineffective night aerial sorties, and fifty-thousand tons of guns, tanks, munitions, engineering and aviation equipment was unloaded the first day, with four times that amount scheduled to be laid down by tonight.

Use New Airfield

American artillery-spotting planes began using the 7,000 foot long Lingayen airfield yesterday. Associated Press Correspondent Spencer Davis found a number of old and wrecked Japanese transports and fighter planes on the field.

Only the prompt withdrawal of the Japanese garrison from Lingayen gulf saved it from early destruction, for in no place on the invasion sector did Yamashita have sufficient power to withstand the blow struck by sea, air and land power January 9.

Correspondent Hampson reported troops from the Lingayen sector pressed about five miles inland, in addition to expanding their holding on the shore.

He said the 14th Corps had overrun about 20 towns and villages, including Lingayen, capital of Pangasinan province. Port Sual is a fair ship anchorage.

Rebuilding Bridges

Hampson said reconstruction of bridges to facilitate the drive toward Manila already is under way. The enemy appears to have pulled well back to inland bases.

While scores of thousands of U. S. Sixth Army troops and hundreds of thousands of deadweight tons of equipment continued to land, Lt. Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita essayed a frantic about face of his warriors defending Manila.

At some point on the central Luzon plains between the opposing forces, the biggest tank and ground battle of the Pacific war soon may be waged.

Yamashita obviously was decoyed into massing his strength between Manila and Batangas by the Yank invasions of Mindoro and Marinduque Islands.

"He is now feverishly bringing up troops from his prepared positions in the south," MacArthur said.

Continuous Aerial Assaults

Overwhelming American air power lashed out in continuous night and day attacks. In contrast, headquarters said "enemy air activity over Luzon has now been reduced to a negligible scale."

There was no official word of any move by Japan's Navy against the battleships, cruisers and destroyers which escorted troop-laden transports in a hazardous voyage from Leyte of more than 800 miles. The ships threaded among enemy-held islands, passed within 40 miles of Manila and even closer to Bataan, reported Spencer Davis, Associated Press war correspondent aboard Vice Adm. Thomas Kinkaid's flagship.

Land-based and carrier-based planes are keeping the Nipponese off balance throughout Luzon, today's communique made clear.

Blast Supply Dumps

Immediately northeast of the Lingayen beachhead, Seventh Fleet carrier planes pounded San Fernando, Baguio and Rosario. They blew up ammunition and supply dumps, attacked barracks and destroyed six enemy planes.

The central plains area over which the Japanese reinforcements must move from Manila to Lingayen was hit hard.

Near Calumpit, 25 miles northwest of Manila, medium bombers, attack planes and fighters wrecked three big highway bridges, tore up railroad tracks and

MAN ARRESTED ON CODE CHARGE

H. C. Ray, of between Heidlersburg and Hunterstown, was injured Wednesday evening when he drove into the rear of a coal truck driving without parking lights just south of Dillsburg, state police reported today.

The coal truck continued driving south, police reported, and Thomas D. Stultz, New Windsor R. 1, was arrested about a mile and a half south of Gettysburg on the Taneytown road later in the night by State Police Officers George J. Evanko, and Harold K. Trout and Borough Officer Clark W. Staley, and identified as the driver of the vehicle. Stultz's truck was found parked in the middle of the road without lights. He was pronounced under the influence of liquor after an examination by Dr. C. G. Crist.

The driver was held today in the county jail for officers from the Harrisburg station of the state police who investigated the accident. He will be removed to the York county jail for action there.

Stultz was apprehended after state police received a call from a resident on the Taneytown road who told of the truck being parked in the middle of the road. The officers had been making a check of coal trucks coming through Gettysburg when the call was received.

Ray suffered lacerations, bruises and shock and was treated by Dr. John V. Miller, of Dillsburg. There was considerable damage to the front end of his car.

COAL SHORTAGE
FOR FEBRUARY

The coal situation in Gettysburg was described today as "not at all good" and "critical" by local coal dealers who were questioned by The Gettysburg Times.

One dealer said that there may be enough of some type of fuel available to keep Gettysburgians warm for the remainder of this month—if they are willing and able to burn bituminous coal or coke instead of anthracite—but after the end of the month some houses may get cold unless coal is secured here at a greater rate than it has up to the present.

One dealer accused some Gettysburgians of being selfish at the expense of their neighbors. "Some people call up and demand that we deliver a certain number of tons to see them out for the rest of the winter. If we did that, some of their neighbors wouldn't get any," he said.

The local coalmen are trying to stretch their almost exhausted coal supplies to reach the greatest number of customers, delivering a half ton or a ton to a house.

From the four local dealers contacted this morning, these reports were gathered:

Supplies Deplete

2. "We have 15 or 20 tons of soft coal but haven't had any hard coal for several days. We could sell 75 tons of anthracite a week if we could get it."

3. "We have about 20 tons of run-of-mine bituminous coal on hand and about 20 tons of hard coal but we have many more tons sold than we can deliver. We could sell 30 to 40 tons of hard coal a day if we had it but we don't know when we'll have any more."

4. "The coal situation in Gettysburg is not at all good. We have a reserve of about 300 tons of soft coal and coke that is left from reserves we built up last summer. We're unloading a car of anthracite but there are five tons sold for every one we have. It will all be gone by night and the soft coal won't last through the month unless new shipments of anthracite are received."

Justice of the Peace John H. Baschore reported today that the two county men charged by the Gettysburg Fire company with blocking the road at the scene of a fire at the Mervin Benner home near the Mt. Joy Lutheran church January 1, have paid fines of $10 each and costs.

The men, Fred McDannell, Arundtsville, and George Taughnbaugh, New Oxford R. 2, were charged with violating the section of the state motor vehicle code which makes it mandatory for a motorist upon approaching fire truck or ambulance, to drive to the right side of the road and remain there until given a signal from a traffic officer to proceed.

The informations were filed by Chief James A. Aumen and the men had been sent 10-day notices to appear before Justice Baschore in answer to the charges.

American Girl Engaged To Italian Prisoner Of War

White Plains, N. Y., Jan. 11 (AP)—Nineteen-year-old Eva Caprari, displaying a diamond ring, says she is engaged to marry an Italian prisoner of war now interned at Chambersburg, Pa., but Army authorities indicate the marriage might constitute a violation of the Geneva convention and edicts of the provost marshal general.

Officers at nearby Fort Slocum said a prisoner of war is supposed to be returned to his own country in the same status as when captured. Conceding that the problem was new to them, they added that matters of wartime propriety and immigration also were involved.

The prisoner is Corp. Delfino Rosatti, 24, who was captured in Tunis. Miss Caprari said she met him at the Chambersburg camp and had visited him several times, while Rosatti came to White Plains once on a pass.

She has a brother in the Army Air Force and another was killed in an accident while in service. Her father, a grocer, was in American

The reports for the districts follow: Gettysburg—243 male and 238 female births; 85 male and 58 female deaths; Cumberland, township—two male and one female births; 11 male and seven female deaths; Straban township—six male and five female births; three male and 10 female deaths; Freedom township—one male and one female death; Highland township—one male birth and three female deaths.

WILL COLLECT
SCRAP SUNDAYS

The Gettysburg Fire company has a balance in all its funds of $10,347.97, including $7,000 in war bonds, it was disclosed in the annual report of Treasurer Joseph E. Codori at the regular monthly meeting Wednesday evening at the engine house.

The money is divided into three funds with balances as follows: General fund, $8,266.42, including $6,500 worth of government bonds; relief fund, $1,449.64; and the kiddies Christmas party fund, $556.91, including $500 worth of war bonds.

Mr. Codori's report showed that $5,000 worth of bonds were purchased during the past year as the largest item on the $6,518.28 expense account. Receipts amounted to $4,953.29, with the largest amount, $2,471.42, coming from the Borough and committees.

The firemen voted to donate $5 to the infantile paralysis fund and to have a scrap collection Sunday afternoon, January 21, beginning at 1 o'clock. Firemen said that the last Sunday afternoon collection, conducted before Christmas, had been one of the most successful the company had ever had, and its was completed in a record time of two hours.

The group decided to continue with the Sunday afternoon drives because more members can assist with the work and better results are achieved than during evening collections.

Charles Yingling was dropped from the rolls.

Included in the total were 129 office cases and 41 home visits. Of the total, 120 involved Army cases, 27 were Navy, 18 were for ex-service men and 25 were civilian cases. Seventy-nine were new contacts, 31 were reopened, 35 were recurrent while 45 were brought forward.

Artillery Smashes Offensive

The lone German offensive gesture against the Third Army was an attempt by a large raiding party to cross the Sure river a few miles south of Echternach. Artillery smashed the force.

Third Army cages now contain 10,160 prisoners taken since December 22. The First Army had captured 15,967 since December 16.

Field dispatches indicated that Field Marshal von Rundstedt may have concentrated his strength in the vicinity of Houffalize, key road junction in the waist of the salient, now squeezed to less than nine miles.

The withdrawal was effected in the same kind of weather that protected the Von Rundstedt forces in the opening days of the winter counteroffensive.

Visibility lifted somewhat yesterday, however, permitting tactical planes to fly for the first time this week in the bulge area. A field dispatch said that up to mid-afternoon the 19th Tactical Air Force reported 252 sorties there.

Conveys Into Bulge

There were no reports of any eastward withdrawal movement beyond the mouth of the salient into Germany. On the contrary, American airmen who bombed roads, bridges and overland transport across the base of the bulge yesterday found motor convoys moving toward the salient—not away from it.

20 TOWNS, VILLAGES CAPTURED; NAZIS ARE FLEEING FROM BULGE

By JAMES M. LONG

Paris, Jan. 11 (AP)—American and British troops have advanced more than three miles into the collapsing western side of the Belgian bulge from which Field Marshal von Rundstedt quickened his skilled and orderly withdrawal.

Signs today were that the Nazi commander hoped to establish a new line 15 miles or so west of the German border between Vielsalm, already entered by the U. S. First Army, Houffalize and the Bastogne sector. A dozen or more towns fell.

Nazis Withdrawing From Bulge

By latest reports, Von Rundstedt has pulled out of the toe of the Ardennes sock with all possible speed. But there was no sign of a stampede such as that in which Field Marshal von Kluge's German 7th Army was partly destroyed in the Falaise massacre in Normandy. Snow and mist gave the Nazis cover.

(The German communiqué announced a withdrawal from the area west of the steep-banked Ourthe river, which flows through by-passed Laroche, "in order to secure the deep flanks of the front in the Ardennes.")

The enemy claimed to have liberated several towns in Alsace-Lorraine, including Rimpling. The communiqué said encircled troops had been annihilated south of Erstein, 10 miles below Strasbourg, and that 300 were captured.

General Eisenhower's communiqué said "German attacks were repulsed in the Alsace plain between Strasbourg and Colmar," where reinforced enemy columns have struck to within ten miles of the Rhine city. U. S. Seventh Army troops stormed into Oeting, a suburb of Forbach and only five miles southwest of the wasted Saarland capital of Saarbrücken.

Take Several Towns

British Second Army troops captured half a dozen towns in the western tip of the Belgian bulge in advances of more than two miles around a 25-mile area from by-passed Laroche to Bure. These were Roy, Harsin, Charnoux, Nassogne, Masbourg and Halleux. The westernmost still was 37 miles inside Belgium.

American First troops on the north side of the salient fought on the outskirts of Laroche and inside Vielsalm, nine miles west of St. Vith. They captured Bihain and moved 1,000 yards southward through stiff opposition to points within three miles of the Houffalize-St. Vith highway, last major German road in the bulge.

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army on the south won commanding ground outside St. Hubert, 14 miles west of Bastogne. The Germans said they had evacuated St. Hubert, their southwest anchor. Third Army troops also captured Harlange, six miles southeast of Bastogne, cutting another mile into the rough Harlange pocket where the Germans were fighting back with tanks and cannon.

Germans Not In Trouble

At no point in the bulge did Von Rundstedt appear to be in difficulty. Unless Field Marshal Montgomery on the north and Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley on the south are able to turn the Germans' guarded withdrawal into an outright retreat and slash more rapidly into the eastern sides of the bulge the wily German commander may yet win the second round of his campaign.

It did not seem assured that the Allied commanders would be able to turn the withdrawal into a rout.

Weather and terrain conspired against that. The Germans were pulling out behind a cover of fields of wooden and plastic mines, used because they were more difficult to detect than metal ones. The mines, covered by snow, considerably retarded pursuit.

With his armor bunched in a shortened arc from Houffalize back to the German border, Von Rundstedt would be able to fight an even stiffer defensive action, perhaps letting the Volkstrum and Volksgrenadier infantry take over the fight along the rising ridge lines.

Indications were that the Germans were trying to form a new line all the way from Vielsalm to Houffalize to Bastogne.

We Are Not Impressed

Aboard Vice Admiral Thomas C. Kinkaid's flagship, Lingayen Gulf, Jan. 11 (AP)—Japan's air force in the Philippines has been dashed, its navy beaten, so last night the enemy called out his swimming team.

The waters of Lingayen gulf are still crowded with the greatest Pacific invasion convoy—fully 2,500,000 tons of U. S. combat and assault shipping—manned by more than 50,000 sailors.

Against this force, 12 little Japanese swimmers ferrying explosives paddled into the transport area. They were found in the morning still floating around, some of them shoving boxes containing TNT. They attempted to duck under them when detected. Two were picked up and when taken into a small boat tried to blow it up with hand grenades. Others were shot in the water as they resisted capture.

Commenting on the Japanese trick, Vice Adm. Thomas C. Kinkaid, commander of the Luzon task force, said: "We are not impressed."

Unloading operations went ahead without interruption despite these attacks, ineffective night aerial sorties, and fifty-thousand tons of guns, tanks, munitions, engineering and aviation equipment was unloaded the first day, with four times that amount scheduled to be laid down by tonight.

Use New Airfield

American artillery-spotting planes began using the 7,000 foot long Lingayen air field yesterday. Associated Press Correspondent Spencer Davis found a number of old and wrecked Japanese transports and fighter planes on the field.

Only the prompt withdrawal of the Japanese garrison from Lingayen gulf saved it from early destruction, for in no place on the invasion sector did Yamashita have sufficient power to withstand the blow struck by sea, air and land power January 9.

Correspondent Hampton reported troops from the Lingayen sector pressed about five miles inland, in addition to expanding their holding on the shore.

He said the 14th Corps had overrun about 20 towns and villages, including Lingayen, capital of Pangasinan province. Port Sual is a fair ship anchorage.

Rebuilding Bridges

Hampton said reconstruction of bridges to facilitate the drive toward Manila already is under way. The enemy appears to have pulled well back to inland bases.

While scores of thousands of U. S. Sixth Army troops and hundreds of thousands of deadweight tons of equipment continued to land, Lt. Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita essayed a frantic about face of his warriors defending Manila.

At some point on the central Luzon plains between the opposing forces, the biggest tank and ground battle of the Pacific war soon may be waged.

Yamashita obviously was decoyed into massing his strength between Manila and Batangas by the Yank invasions of Mindoro and Marinduque islands.

"He is now feverishly bringing up troops from his prepared positions in the south," MacArthur said.

Continuous Aerial Assaults

Overwhelming American air power lashed out in continuous night and day attacks. In contrast, headquarters said "enemy air activity over Luzon has now been reduced to a negligible scale."

There was no official word of any move by Japan's Navy against the battleships, cruisers and destroyers which escorted troop-laden transports in a hazardous voyage from Leyte of more than 800 miles. The ships threaded among enemy-held islands, passed within 40 miles of Manila and even closer to Bataan, reported Spencer Davis, Associated Press war correspondent aboard Vice Adm. Thomas Kinkaid's flagship.

Land-based and carrier-based planes are keeping the Nipponese off balance throughout Luzon, today's communiqué made clear.

Blast Supply Dumps

Immediately northeast of the Lingayen beachhead, Seventh Fleet carrier planes pounded San Fernando, Baguio and Rosario. They blew up ammunition and supply dumps, attacked barracks and destroyed six enemy planes.

The central plains area over which the Japanese reinforcements must move from Manila to Lingayen was hit hard.

Near Calumpit, 25 miles northwest of Manila, medium bombers, attack planes and fighters wrecked three big highway bridges, tore up railroad tracks and

BELGIAN BULGE MAY BOOMERANG AGAINST NAZIS

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The battle of the Belgian bulge continues to go so well for the Allies that, without over-reaching, our conclusions, we can say Nazi Marshal Von Rundstedt's counter-offensive not only may prove to be a nasty boomerang.

The latest high-ranking exponent of this idea is Lt. Gen. Omar Bradley, commander of the U. S. 12th Army group in France, who says he Germans' drive may materially affect their "ability to resist." That is, their ability to prolong the war may have been reduced. The general warns, however, that this doesn't mean we can assume the Hitlerites are on the verge of collapse, since there's much fighting to come—a wise qualification.

Bradley's opinion obviously is worth much, for he has been in the thick of the enemy assault. Naturally he couldn't carry his cautious statement much further, but it would be interesting to know how often he thinks the Germans may begin to get the full weight of the diverse reaction to their daring and dangerous venture. In short, when will the Allies be able to stage a knockout offensive of their own.

Rear-Guard Action

Rundstedt is falling back from the western tip of that long, narrow bulge which is contracting about him. The way things look he will continue to withdraw until ultimately he again reaches his frontier defenses. Now this doesn't mean he is running away. He's fighting a fierce rear-guard action and discharges from the front indicate he may try to make a determined stand at Houffalize, the key position in the heart of the salient.

However, the great point is that Rundstedt is losing heavily in men and material, for the struggle in the bulge is a battle of annihilation. By the time he reaches his Siegfried defenses his army will need a blood-transfusion.

Delayed Allies

The Nazi marshal's chief achievement is in delaying the Allied winter offensive perhaps three months or so. Whether this will represent any real gain remains to be seen, for he may arrive back at the Rhine so badly shot to pieces that his further powers of resistance will be weak. Presumably that possibility is what General Bradley has in mind.

Should this eventuate, the time spent in the battle of the bulge wouldn't have lengthened the war but would in fact have shortened it. Rundstedt had to be smashed sometime, and it's perhaps just as well to do it in the bulge as on the Cologne plain where Eisenhower had planned to force a show-down.

How soon will the Allies be able to conclude the battle of the bulge and mount an all-out offensive to end all offensives? It strikes me that we shall be over optimistic if we look for preliminaries of the big show short of the good weather of April, if needed they can come that soon.

Aerial Assaults

A major offensive must be preceded by a tremendous amount of spade work by the air-forces, especially to disrupt communications and supply centers which have been restored during the diversion of the offensive into Belgium. At present the fighter-bombers, which carry out the short-range close work calling for visual bombing (as opposed to bombing by instrument), are grounded by foul weather most of the time. That weather may be expected to continue through March.

Still, if Rundstedt is gravely weakened by his present great effort, when the Allied offensive does start to roll, it will roll.

Here And There

News Collected At Random

The other evening two young wives of two young men in service, one on the high seas in the Atlantic and the other on the western front, pooled their limited allowance resources and their energy to pack a box of home-made sweets for their husbands in uniform.

They blanched raw shelled peanuts, roasted them and packed them in small tin containers. They made a batch of fudge and sea foam. Each piece of candy was carefully and tenderly wrapped in a piece of waxed paper.

In two shipping cartons they lined funny papers. Then they packed the fresh roasted peanuts and candy, which had been carefully tiered in separate boxes, filled the open spaces with more comics and weighed each package. One was a few ounces over five pounds so a comic or two was removed. The other perhaps was slightly under five pounds so an additional comic was inserted. Finally each package weighed the limited five pounds, allowing, of course, for the heavy cord which was tied tightly around each package. The next morning the parcels were posted—with a prayer that they would reach their destination... undamaged.

The significant thing about this little incident is that these two wives had been saving sugar for some time in order to make their husbands' favorite candy. They saved sugar by drinking their coffee unsweetened. Just another of war's many sacrifices.

Motor Truck Facts, biennial publication of the Automobile Manufacturers' Association, just off the press, reveals that 226 different types of military vehicles are now being made by the automotive industry. This reveals how thoroughly warfare has been motorized in the past thirty years.

Many of you no doubt recall that dark September day in 1914 when General Joseph Simon Gallieni, military governor of Paris, rounded up every available capital to transport the endangered city's garrison troops to the front in time to halt the German Army at the Marne.

Many also will recall that motorized vehicles in war were used by the U. S. Army in March, 1916, when the advance column of Americans crossed the International line at Columbus, New Mexico, on a punitive expedition against Pancho Villa, the Mexican bandit. This column was followed by 74 motor trucks laden with supplies for General John J. Pershing's expedition into Mexico.

Yes, motor vehicles have come a long way in the past 30 years. And they'll go farther after the war. The Russians paid high tribute to Yankee trucks when a high officer in the Red Army said: "The best secret weapon of this war is the American two-ton truck."

Five $25 war bonds will be given each month to pupils in the tin can salvage drive. The state is divided into five districts. Adams county is in the third district with 16 other counties. The pupil who salvages the most tin cans each month in each district will receive a $25 war bond prize.

Not so many weeks ago Americans were preparing to celebrate the defeat of Germany. The celebration threatened to become a disruptive orgy. Concern over the situation caused employees of the Boston and Maine Railroad to pledge support of the war effort after V-Day in a message that should not be forgotten, although at present victory in Europe seems farther away than it did last summer. The message says:

"We don't know when V-Day will be... but when it does come, we... know how we're going to celebrate."

"On V-Day we'll be working—full time, full speed. There aren't going to be any parties. Our men aren't going to spike the switches and get together for any whoopee! There won't be any empty desks in our office, or freight trains standing idle in our yards. We ask you not to ride our trains that day to get celebrating."

"Most of us will go to church. We shall thank God, and pray for speedy victory over Japan. We urge you to do the same."

"Probably it isn't any of our business what you do on V-Day. But complete victory is everybody's business. The time you

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst
The battle of the Belgian bulge continues to go so well for the Allies that, without over-reaching or our conclusions, we can say Nazi "held Marshal Von Rundstedt's counter-offensive not only may prove to be a nasty boomerang."

The latest high-ranking exponent of this idea is Lt. Gen. Omar Bradley, commander of the U. S. 12th Army group in France, who says the Germans' drive may materially affect their "ability to resist." That is, their ability to prolong the war may have been reduced. The general warns, however, that this doesn't mean we can assume the Allies are on the verge of collapse, since there's much fighting to come—a wise qualification.

Bradley's opinion obviously is worth much, for he has been in the thick of the enemy assault. Naturally he couldn't carry his cautious statement much further, but it would be interesting to know how soon he thinks the Germans may begin to get the full weight of the diverse reaction to their daring and dangerous venture. In short, when all the Allies be able to stage a knockout offensive of their own.

Rear-Guard Action
Rundstedt is falling back from the western tip of that long, narrow bulge which is contracting about him. The way things look he will continue to withdraw until ultimately he again reaches his frontier defenses. Now this doesn't mean he is running away. He's fighting a fierce rear-guard action and discharges from the front indicate he may try to make a determined stand at Houffalize, the key position in the heart of the salient.

However, the great point is that Rundstedt is losing heavily in men and material, for the struggle in the bulge is a battle of annihilation. By the time he reaches his Siegfried line his army will need a blood-ransfusion.

Delayed Allies
The Nazi marshal's chief achievement is in delaying the Allied winter offensive perhaps three months or so. Whether this will represent any real gain remains to be seen, or he may arrive back at the Rhine so badly shot to pieces that his further powers of resistance will be weak. Presumably that possibility is what General Bradley has in mind.

Should this eventuate, the time spent in the battle of the bulge wouldn't have lengthened the war out would in fact have shortened it. Rundstedt had to be smashed sometime, and it's perhaps just as well to do it in the bulge as on the Cologne plain where Eisenhower had planned to force a show-down.

How soon will the Allies be able to conclude the battle of the bulge and mount an all-out offensive to end all offensives? It strikes me that we shall be over optimistic if we look for preliminaries of the big show short of the good weather of April, if needed they can come that soon.

Aerial Assaults
A major offensive must be preceded by a tremendous amount of spade work by the air-forces, especially to disrupt communications and supply centers which have been restored during the diversion of the offensive into Belgium. At present the fighter-bombers, which carry out the short-range close work calling for visual bombing (as opposed to bombing by instrument), are grounded by foul weather most of the time. That weather may be expected to continue through March.

Still, if Rundstedt is gravely weakened by his present great effort, when the Allied offensive does start a roll, it will roll.

Myers was driving toward Biglerville when the accident occurred and Mrs. Delp was driving in the opposite direction. Evanko said. Damage to the two automobiles was estimated at $250.

Here And There

News Collected At Random

The other evening two young wives of two young men in service, one on the high seas in the Atlantic and the other on the western front, pooled their limited allowance resources and their energy to pack a box of home-made sweets for their husbands in uniform.

They blanched raw shelled peanuts, roasted them and packed them in small tin containers. They made a batch of fudge and sea foam. Each piece of candy was carefully and tenderly wrapped in a piece of waxed paper.

In two shipping cartons they lined funny papers. Then they packed the fresh roasted peanuts and candy, which had been carefully tiered in separate boxes, filled the open spaces with more comics and weighed each package. One was a few ounces over five pounds so a comic or two was removed. The other perhaps was slightly under five pounds so an additional comic was inserted. Finally each package weighed the limited five pounds, allowing, of course, for the heavy cord which was tied tightly around each package. The next morning the parcels were posted—with a prayer that they would reach their destination... undamaged.

The significant thing about this little incident is that these two wives had been saving sugar for some time in order to make their husbands' favorite candy. They saved sugar by drinking their coffee unsweetened. Just another of war's many sacrifices.

Motor Truck Facts, biennial publication of the Automobile Manufacturers' Association, just off the press, reveals that 226 different types of military vehicles are now being made by the automotive industry. This reveals how thoroughly warfare has been motorized in the past thirty years.

Many of you no doubt recall that dark September day in 1914 when General Joseph Simon Gallieni, military governor of Paris, rounded up every available taxicab in the French capital to transport the endangered city's garrison troops to the front in time to halt the German Army at the Marne.

Many also will recall that motorized vehicles in war were used by the U. S. Army in March, 1916, when the advance column of Americans crossed the International line at Columbus, New Mexico, on a punitive expedition against Pancho Villa, the Mexican bandit. This column was followed by 74 motor trucks laden with supplies for General John J. Pershing's expedition into Mexico.

Yes, motor vehicles have come a long way in the past 30 years. And they'll go farther after the war. The Russians paid high tribute to Yankee trucks when a high officer in the Red Army said: "The best secret weapon of this war is the American two-ton truck."

Five $25 war bonds will be given each month to pupils in the tin can salvage drive. The state is divided into five districts. Adams county is in the third district with 16 other counties. The pupil who salvages the most tin cans each month in each district, will receive a $25 war bond prize.

Not so many weeks ago Americans were preparing to celebrate the defeat of Germany. The celebration threatened to become a disruptive orgy. Concern over the situation caused employees of the Boston and Maine Railroad to pledge support of the war effort after V-Day in a message that should not be forgotten, although at present Victory in Europe seems farther away than it did last summer. The message says:

"We don't know when V-Day will be... but when it does come, we... know how we're going to celebrate."

"On V-Day we'll be working—full time, full speed. There aren't going to be any parties. Our men aren't going to spike the switches and get together for any whoopee! There won't be any empty desks in our office, or freight trains standing idle in our yards. We ask you not to ride our trains that day to go celebrating."

"Most of us will go to church. We shall thank God, and pray for speedy victory over Japan. We urge you to do the same."

"Probably it isn't any of our business what you do on V-Day. But complete victory is everybody's business. The time you chaser and a small auxiliary vessel."

London, Jan. 11 (AP)—A mine explosion in a lecture hut at a camp near Canterbury yesterday killed 20 British soldiers and injured at least 25, it was announced today. The troops, all previously wounded, were taking a course of instruction preparatory to returning to the front.

Western Front

the time was near when the Germans must withdraw "behind the protecting bunkers of the Siegfried line."

American armor and infantry have by-passed Laroche, long an important German communications hub, in a general advance on the north side of the bulge. Field dispatches said the Germans had pulled their main forces from that town as well as others in the vicinity. American armored forces had driven at least a mile south of Samree, three miles northeast of Laroche, after capturing that town in a major tank battle yesterday.

The U. S. Seventh Army, which spread its strength over part of the Saar front held by the Third before the latter moved against the Ardennes bulge, gained a mile in an attack yesterday southwest of Saarbrücken.

Along the Rhine north of Strasbourg other Seventh Army troops fought back into Drusenheim and Heerlsheim, both of which were overrun by the Germans last week when they established their bridgehead across the Rhine.

littered the road with dead Japanese and smashed trucks. These attacks threatened to create a bottleneck for the enemy in a swampy area.

At Clark field, 75 miles northwest of Manila, 34 enemy planes were wrecked on the ground.

Two Airfields Burn
On Manila's outskirts, Nielson and Nichols airfields were swept by large fires, started by 70 tons of explosives dropped from Liberators.

All over the central plains sector north of Manila, communications and airfields were bombed. Winging across the China sea, which the big American fleet penetrated in strength to get to Luzon, long range reconnaissance planes flew to the vicinity of aerially-battered Formosa to hit a freighter and shoot down a floatplane.

Aboard Admiral Kinkaid's Seventh Fleet flagship in the gulf, Spencer Davis wrote: "In this 800-odd ships (of the invasion convoy) were scores of thousands of U. S. Sixth Army troops, hundreds of thousands of dead-weight tons of assault supplies, ranging from tanks, long toms and bazookas to carrier pigeons and dog teams."

"In the LSTS (landing ships, tanks) alone, there were more than 1,200 vehicles. This was the mightiest armada ever assembled in the Pacific."

At Dapkin, Associated Press war correspondent aboard Rear Adm. Daniel E. Barbey's flagship, reported the convoys stretched out for 80 miles.

HAMBERSBURG QUINTET HERE FRIDAY NIGHT

Probably the largest crowd of the season will be on hand Friday evening when the Chambersburg high quintet meets the Gettysburg high quintet in the first Southern Division game of the South Penn circuit for the Broom-men.

hambersburg, defending Southern and District 3 PIAA champion, is rated as the team to beat this year's title. The Trojans need their league schedule last night by facing Waynesboro at Chambersburg, 5:30.

Coach Beard has another classy lot that has dropped but one this season, that to unbeaten team. Foremost in the Trojan line is Joe Howard, high scoring forward, a former Gettysburg resident. Palmer is expected to pair off with Howard at forward with C. Howard at center and M. Lelsher, and Koutris at guards.

Maroon's Hopes High
While Chambersburg has shown form in most games this season the Trojan outfit is undoubtedly weaker than the outfit which swept through its regular schedule last year unbeaten. Hopes for a Gettysburg victory lay were greatly increased Tuesday evening when Coach "Ben" am's charges put on a vastly improved performance. The team apparently has at last hit its true stride and will be a tough opponent for the foe.

Dodgers Expect To Play Ball This Year

New York, Jan. 11 (AP)—First real indication that the baseball people expect to do business this year came today when Branch Rickey, president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, stated that only a direct order from Washington would keep him from putting a team on the field. "I don't know what sort of a team I'll have," he said, "but there'll be players in Dodgers uniforms in all. Even if the 4-Fs are drafted, I'll go with kids and over-age veterans if we have to."

Fuel Oil Rations Remain Unchanged

Washington, Jan. 11 (AP)—East coast rations of fuel oil will remain unchanged at 10 gallons per unit for period 3, beginning Jan. 15, OPA announced today.

Consumers were told they must ration their own daily use of oil, since supplies at this period of the heating season were described as the lowest since rationing began.

Maintenance of the 10-gallon value for ration coupons, OPA said, "actually represents a cut to consumers in relation to their increased demands" caused by excessively cold weather recently along the Atlantic seaboard.

Mrs. Caraway And Adolf Berle Get Jobs

Washington, Jan. 11 (AP)—Adolf Berle, Jr., until recently an assistant Secretary of State, was nominated by President Roosevelt Wednesday to be ambassador to Brazil. Berle resigned as assistant secretary when the President and Secretary of State Stettinius reorganized the department a few weeks ago. He will succeed Jefferson Caffery, who left the Brazilian post to become ambassador to France.

Mr. Roosevelt nominated former Senator Hattie Caraway to membership on the United States Employees Compensation commission. The job pays $9,000 a year.

COLUMBIA DOWN; LACK OF WATER

Columbia, Pa., Jan. 11 (AP)—Every bar, soda fountain, barber shop and laundry in this town of 12,000 is closed today and residents are under orders to boil all drinking water, as officials continue their struggle with a growing water shortage.

The reservoir which has been supplying Columbia since Monday, when a Susquehanna river ice-jam flooded the water works pumping station, is now down to less than one-day's normal supply.

Theodore Kain, manager of the water company said that conditions were rapidly becoming "desperate" last night after Army-sponsored pumping into mains from a nearby creek was discontinued when contaminating material was discovered.

Thirty industrial plants have been closed since Monday due to the shortage.

Various solutions, including bombing or blasting of the jam and an emergency pipeline to York, Pa., 13 miles away, have been suggested, but all have been discarded.

Kain estimated that even after the jam is cleared and the pumping station is emptied, it will take three or four days to get back into operation.

Brooks took care of that situation, and visited his ration board.

The board voted four to one against issuing a new tire. The one vote in favor was his own. Brooks says he's undecided whether to retire from the board.

HEAVY BOMBERS HIT JAP BASES

Washington, Jan. 11 (AP)—Superfortresses thundered across the Bay of Bengal today to hammer Japanese military installations on the Malay peninsula.

Meanwhile another Superfortress raid on Tokyo was announced by the Japanese radio.

The India-nested B-29s of Major Gen. Curtis E. Lemay's 20th Bomber Command struck Malay boldly by daylight. Size of the attacking force and its specific targets were not announced in a terse 20th Air Force communique.

Seek Jap Fleet
Singapore, wrested from the British in 1942 and reportedly converted into Japan's major naval stronghold in the Malay-Dutch East Indies area, probably was the target. Some 60 Superfortresses lashed Singapore's dry docks and repair basins last November 5, flying what the 20th Air Force described as the longest daylight mission ever recorded for military planes. A Japanese ship, the largest dry dock and other vital points were hit.

This former bulwark of British sea power on the tip of the Malay peninsula is likewise a transit point for Nipponese reinforcements to the oil-rich Indies. Sumatra with its big, rambling refineries lies directly across the straits of Malacca.

Now operating with clock-like precision, the B-29s possibly were gunning for Singapore-based units of the Japanese grand fleet which could be dispatched to harass General Douglas MacArthur's Luzon forces. Lt. Gen. Masaharu Homma, former Nipponese commander in the Philippines, suggested the possibility

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief
Many sufferers relieve nagging backaches quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with stinging and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

NEW MANPOWER PLAN SET UP

Wilbur P. Gallatin, War Manpower Commission area director for the Lancaster area which includes Adams county, announced today a five point WMC program intended to marshal all resources to man the "must" plants producing combat materials for war.

The plan, which has the approval of the WPB, is intended to intensify the calling of men from less essential industries into critical war work. It provides for immediate manpower inventories in less essential industries, a public appeal for workers that the Luzon invasion will force the elusive Japanese Navy to come out and fight.

CHAMBERSBURG QUINTET HERE FRIDAY NIGHT

Probably the largest crowd of the season will be on hand Friday evening when the Chambersburg high Trojans meet the Gettysburg high Maroons in the first Southern Division game of the South Penn circuit for the Bream-men.

Chambersburg, defending South Penn and District 3 PIAA champion, is rated as the team to beat for this year's title. The Trojans opened their league schedule last Friday by lacing Waynesboro at Chambersburg, 53-20.

Coach Beard has another classy outfit that has dropped but one game this season, that to unbeaten Scotland. Foremost in the Trojan lineup is Joe Howard, high scoring forward, a former Gettysburg resident. Palmer is expected to pair off with Howard at forward with C. Leshar at center and M. Leshar and N. Koutiris at guards.

Maroons' Hopes High
While Chambersburg has shown good form in most games this season the Trojan outfit is undoubtedly somewhat weaker than the outfit which swept through its regular schedule last year unbeaten.

Hopes for a Gettysburg victory Friday were greatly increased Tuesday evening when Coach "Hen" Bream's charges put on a vastly improved performance. The team apparently has at last hit its true stride and will be a tough opponent for future foes.

The Maroon starting outfit of Gorman and Heintzelman, forwards; Ogden, center, and Eisenhart and Fidler, guards, put on a brilliant all-around exhibition against Carlisle that left little to be desired.

Other Games
The reserve teams will clash in the preliminary game at 7 o'clock. Hanover will play at Waynesboro in another Southern Division game Friday evening.

County schools are listed for games Friday as follows: Littlestown at New Oxford; Arendtsville at East Berlin; Lemoyne at Biglerville, and the Fairfield seventh and eighth graders at Lincoln school.

Local Athletes On College Quintets

Richard Culp, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Culp, York street, an engineering student at Lehigh university, has clinched the center position on the Lehigh varsity basketball squad and tallied eight points against Albright in a game played Wednesday evening at Bethlehem. Albright won the game 57-47. Culp was a member of the Gettysburg high varsity squad last year.

Donald Wickerham, a Navy trainee at Ursinus college and son of Dr. and Mrs. Ralph D. Wickerham, East Broadway, was scheduled to start at guard for the Bears in their game with Penn Wednesday night. Penn captured the game 65-52. Wickerham formerly was varsity guard on the Gettysburg high quintet.

Both Lehigh and Albright will be met by the Gettysburg college quintet later this season.

Dodgers Expect To Play Ball This Year

New York, Jan. 11 (AP)—First real intimation that the baseball people expect to do business this year came yesterday when Branch Rickey, president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, declared that only a direct order from Washington would keep him from putting a team on the field. "I don't know what sort of a team we'll have," he said, "but there'll be 25 players in Dodgers uniforms in April. Even if the 4-Fs are drafted, we'll go with kids and over-age veterans if we have to."

Fuel Oil Rations Remain Unchanged

Washington, Jan. 11 (AP)—East coast rations of fuel oil will remain unchanged at 10 gallons per unit for period 3, beginning Jan. 15, OPA announced today.

Consumers were told they must ration their own daily use of oil, since supplies at this period of the heating season were described as the lowest since rationing began.

Maintenance of the 10-gallon value for ration coupons, OPA said, "actually represents a cut to consumers in relation to their increased demands" caused by excessively cold weather recently along the Atlantic seaboard.

ASSISTANCE

Fame has its arrogance, and riches offMake proud the favored few,
As if the purse could taken be aloft
And used, as mortals do.Yet as with men upon a ship at sea
When threatening storms arise, Riches and fame both helpless prove To be.

All turn to seamen wise.

The skillful hand, the knowing mind,
The craftsman at his trade,
Become the friends the great must find

When troubled and afraid.

No one so rich or worldly great
But ere his journey's end
Will need, disaster else his fate,
The full strength of a friend.

Today's Talk

THE MIRACLE OF ALL LIFE

The miracle of life after death is none the less feasible than the miracle of Mind that conceived all the life that we know. The life of every creative thing is a miracle —including man. We cannot intelligently sweep origins away. Here we are—a vast army of created life —voyaging toward eternity.Each day is a miracle, something never known before. The beat of the heart, that sustains action, human thought, and our ability to conceive new objectives, is a miracle. That which we have looked upon, a score or more of times before, may truthfully be looked upon as a new miracle, for nothing is ever the same.This fact is what gives to our consciousness such ecstasy of emotion, such joy and delight, as we look with wonder upon all the forces of Nature, and of the Universe, with its blue skies, star-studded heavens, and its mystical, nonetheless, though ever changing permanence.Coming across the desert from the Pacific Coast, a few years ago, I was fascinated by its carpet of glorified flowers, so rich in variegated color, that its spiritual significance was immediate. Then, later, when I viewed a great acreage of Texas Blue Bonnets, I felt that a miracle of Nature had been enacted before my eyes for me alone, for the sight of it wrapped me completely in its coils of beauty.The vine that climbs the wall or cottage is indeed a miracle of growth. Examine that vine, and note its tiny tendrils, as they tighten about other material. Always climbing upward, to meet the light the better, and there, perhaps, to savor for the pleasure of man or the profit of bee or humming bird.The very earth that you tread from day to day is a veritable mine of miraculous mystery. The exact chemicals that form your body rest there. And from its spreading acres come the materials that give us all every comfort that we enjoy. The paper on which I now write, the noiseless machine that responds to the touch of my fingers, the desk where it rests, the books all about, the rugs upon the floor—all once a part of the raw earth.I can understand the significance of that beautiful dedication that Michael Fairless gave to her marvelous brief book, The Roadmender.
It was: "To Earth—my Mother."
Miraculous Earth, the Mother of us all!Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "Firm Under the Pressure of Life"

Dog Devours Last
Pound Of ButterHollidaysburg, Pa., Jan. 11 (AP)—
Not only did Fred J. Wolf find a pound of butter—but it was the last the grocer had.Paying the cash and the 24 points, he took it home and put it on the dining room table. When he brought his wife in from the kitchen to surprise her, he found his dog had eaten it.That originally military leaders figured on making that shift during the past fall or the current winter.
When it became evident that German strategy was to hold out as long as possible rather than surrender to overwhelming Allied power, the European time-table was moved back to next spring or early summer. Now it has been shifted to late summer or fall barring unforeseen developments of weakness in German resistance.This means that if the European war goes as planned it will be many months before maximum concentrations can be employed in the Pacific. Such concentrations would be necessary for the invasion of Japan or China.This raises the possibility of stalling off great amphibious operations against the Japanese until some indefinite time when there can be a clean-up in Europe and concentrating meanwhile on blockade and bombardment.ALLIED PLANS ALTERED WITH PUSH ON LUZONWashington, Jan. 11 (AP) — A sweeping review of Allied grand strategy is now expected to be made by military and political chiefs beginning with the Big Three conference around February 1.A whole series of events is forcing this review and probably drastic revisions of Allied thinking, the latest being the American invasion of Luzon. The problem is to relate future operations in the Pacific, where the war is moving at high speed, to coming operations in Europe where the developments are on a badly delayed time-table.Estimates that as a result of the German offensive that the European war might be prolonged three to six months, which are still held here despite recent optimistic reports from France, furnish the key to the problem.From the first it was assumed that any major operations in the Pacific would require maximum concentrations of force which would not be possible until Germany had been defeated and armies and supplies shifted from Europe to the Pacific-Asiatic front.

REDS' BATTLE
FOR HUNGARY
NEARS CLOSEMoscow, Jan. 11—The battle for Hungary entered what appeared to be the final stage today, with the Germans making an all-out effort to reach the collapsing Nazi garrison in Budapest before being outflanked by the westward Russian advance north of the Danube.From inside the devastated capital, three-fourths of which is now in Russian hands, the Red Star correspondent reported Hungarian soldiers have bolted and surrendered in such great numbers that the Nazis have broken all Hungarian units and attached them in company numbers to German regiments.Repeated German counterattacks northwest of Budapest have been smashed and Soviet forces threatening to cut the Nazi left flank have driven to within a mile and one quarter of Komarom, the Soviet communique disclosed.Block Rail Line
Other frontline reports said rail traffic out of Komarom, a communications hub on the Danube 40 miles northwest of Budapest, had been blocked by Red Army artillery.
The eight-day Nazi drive to breakSeek To Prevent Grid Game StallingColumbus, O., Jan. 11 (AP)—The football team that by some hook or crook stalls away those last few seconds of a game seemed today to have become the No. 1 subject of the National Football Coaches association as they got into the serious part of their first general meeting since the start of the war.A few Big Ten coaches have talked about having a game consist of 160 plays, 40 for each period, but still another suggestion came up today.
E. C. (Irish) Krueger of Columbus, secretary of the National CollegiateAthletic association rules committee, and Charley Bachman, head coach at Michigan State college, had this to offer at a session of the coaches' rules committee:
That the second and fourth periods be 13 minutes long each and that after that a certain number of plays—perhaps six—be allowed in each period. The first andthird periods would continue to be the regular 15 minutes.

DEMILITARIZE ASKS HEAT IN HOMES REDUCED HOMES AND JAPS ASSERTS SOLON

By JACK BELL
Washington, Jan. 11.—Democrats urged cold water today on a Republican proposal for an immediate international agreement on postwar demilitarization of Germany and Japan. With the subject expected to be reached at a White House conference today, Chairman Connally (D., N. Y.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said he regarded attempts to move in on this question as impracticable.

However, Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.), who urged in a formal Senate speech yesterday that the major allies agree at once in a treaty to use instant force to keep the Axis demilitarized, had an opportunity to tell President Roosevelt more about his views. He was invited to the White House. He has said the next move is up to the President.

It was Vandenberg's contention that Russia and Britain were being misled by a fear that Germany might rear up in the future, into making separate protective deals before world peace organization can be aimed.

He argued that an American ledge for speedy action to keep the Axis disarmed would remove the need for such unilateral agreements; and said where such agreements are made, they be subjected to review later by the world peace organization.

Connally, chairman of a committee, told a reporter that while he is certain the Allies are united on their intent to keep Germany and Japan militarily impotent, he feels this question should not be dealt with separately.

Vandenberg obviously was satisfied he had answered those who have been saying the Republican party too often criticizes, too seldom offers constructive suggestions.

ASKS HEAT IN HOMES REDUCED

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

Washington, Jan. 11 (AP)—The American people reached for red flannels and extra blankets today after James F. Byrnes issued an appeal that appeared likely to leave the country cold.

Without exception, the War Mobilizer requested last night that temperatures in all homes and public buildings be held to 68 degrees.

That was only one of the ways he proposed to save coal, meet an impending shortage of the fuel and avoid its rationing. He made compliance voluntary.

On the mandatory side, he ordered imposition of a "brownout." The War Production Board was instructed to issue orders banning all illuminated outdoor advertising and any ornamental or display lighting which uses coal-generated electricity.

And Byrnes told the Office of Defense Transportation to eliminate special and excursion trains and extra passenger schedules to resorts. What ODT will do about it is obscure, for some time ago it froze passenger train schedules and forbade specials.

The curb on hot houses and offices will apply to those heated by gas and oil as well as by coal. That was on the reasoning that oil is

2 INCREASES IN DRAFT CALLS BEFORE JULY 1

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Jan. 11 (AP)—Don't let the impression from the statement of Undersecretary of War Patterson—900,000 men have to be taken into the armed forces by July 1—that it means a great, sudden addition to draft calls.

It doesn't. It means simply that the Army, starting in March, will increase its draft calls 20,000 over what it is taking now.

This means that between March and July 1 the Army wants a total of 80,000 more draftees than it had figured a month ago it would need.

And that 900,000—it includes draftees and volunteers alike—is not for the Army alone. It's for all the armed services: Army, Navy and Marine Corps.

This roughly is the way the inductions had been running a month: Army, 60,000 drafted; Navy and Marines, 35,000 drafted; Navy and Marines, 25,000 volunteers from boys under 18. Monthly total: 120,000.

Two Increases
In December the War department announced its draft calls for January and February would be raised from 80,000 to 100,000. So the monthly inductions in January and February will be something like this:

Army (which stopped taking volunteers Dec. 1), 80,000 drafted; Navy and Marines, 35,000 drafted; Navy and Marines, 25,000 volunteers. Total for each of the two months: 140,000.

But, beginning March 1 and extending through June, the Army again ups its draft calls, this time from 80,000 to 100,000. So, monthly inductions for the 4 months beginning March 1 will be:

Army, 100,000 drafted; Navy and Marines, 35,000 drafted; Navy and Marines, 25,000 volunteers. So the monthly total will be 160,000. Total for the four months will be: 640,000.

This brings the total of inductions—drafted and volunteered—up to 920,000 between now and July 1.

Deliver Milk To Snowbound Kiddies

Erie, Pa., Jan. 11 (AP)—Getting the milk through to snowbound Erie county citizens was a major task but it didn't stop two indefatigable members of the Erie County Milk association.

John Straub and Merritt Johnson travelled by truck, horse and cutter, toboggan and snowshoes to deliver seven cases of milk to 32 children in Greene township who had been without it for a week, Straub said.

"It took us more than four hours, but those folks were glad to get those seven cases of milk. We just floundered around in that snow—making about a half mile each two hours."

Pleads Guilty In Manslaughter Case

Holidaysburg, Pa., Jan. 11 (AP)—Mrs. Olive L. Westover, 42, of Altoona, unexpectedly halted her murder trial here yesterday when she pleaded guilty of voluntary manslaughter in the death of Herbert A. Weidel, 63, Altoona railroad worker.

District Attorney J. Calvin Lang accepted her plea while the jury was being selected.

Judge George G. Patterson sentenced Mrs. Westover to 10 to 20 years in Blair county jail and fined her $25 and costs.

She had been charged with murder in Weidel's death last November 9 which the commonwealth contended was caused by the woman's pounding his head against a wall last September 23.

Lutherans Install New President

The Rev. Franklin Clark Fry (inset) is the new president of the United Lutheran Church in America. His headquarters is the former J. Pierpont Morgan town house at Madison avenue and 37th street, New York.

New York, Jan. 11 (AP)—The Rev. Dr. Franklin Clark Fry of Akron, O., was installed Wednesday as the second president of the United Lutheran Church in America since it was organized in 1918.

Dr. Fry, a native of Bethlehem, Pa., succeeded the Rev. Dr. Frederick H. Knobel.

The church claims a membership of 1,750,000 in more than 4,000 congregations in 46 states and seven Canadian provinces.

ASK INDUSTRY FOR MORE ARMS WITH LESS MEN

Washington, Jan. 11 (AP)—Industry today was asked to repeat its record-breaking 1944 arms production job while yielding up some 200,000 to 250,000 more young men to meet climbing draft calls this spring.

It became clear that the Army is about to dip into the next age tier, 26 through 29, in an industrial clean-out only less drastic than last spring's discontinuance of occupational deferments for men under 26.

War Mobilization Director Byrnes was reported to be working out a revision of the list of essential industries to see which should be classed as "critical" and thus exempt from the new call for young fighting men.

In other essential industries, deferments of under-30 workers will be reviewed, it was stated. The total to be taken was estimated by one source to be "more than 200,000, but not as many as 300,000." About 800,000 men in the 26-29 group now hold deferments.

This impending strain on the country's manpower resources will coincide with a towering armament job, Chairman J. A. Krug of the War Production board told the House Military committee yesterday.

About $64,000,000,000 worth of arms and supplies will be needed in 1945, he estimated. This is almost exactly the record total of 1944 and represents a higher rate of output than that of recent months when arms schedules tapered off.

The Winniebag Grain Exchange was formed in 1908.

Chapter 21

Lucy's house was an old-fash- ioned frame house built on a founda- tion of fieldstone, which also made the two chimneys. There was an ell at the back, which housed the kitchen and the dining room, and so Meredith drove around to the back of the house, and parked. As she went up the back steps, to the wide veranda that ran across the back of the house and along the ell, the kitchen door opened and Lucy came out, shivering in the biting cold, wiping her hands anx- iously on her neat gingham apron, greeting Meredith with shy pleasure, bustling her into the warm kitchen, spicy and fragrant with the smell of dinner cooking.

"I was just stirring up a cake," she said apologetically, as Meredith took the chair near the stove and spread her chilled hands to the grateful warmth.

Lucy Butler looked at her nar- rowly, and said, as she beat the cake batter expertly, "Who's sick out this way, Dr. Merry? I know you didn't drive all this way out just to see me—and during your office hours, too!"

"But I did drive out here to see you, Miss Lucy," said Mered- ith, bracing herself. "I'm afraid I've—bad news for you, Miss Lucy."

"Jerry?" she whispered, white- lipped. "Something's happened to Jerry—an accident. The roads are frozen—"

Meredith put her hands on those shaking hands, taking them away from the knotted apron strings, and saying swiftly, "It isn't an accident, Miss Lucy. Dr. Nichols gave Jerry a physical examination a few days ago—remember?"

Lucy looked at her with wide, frightened eyes, and was sudden- ly very still, like a woman turned to stone.

"I remember," she said faintly. "Well—Jerry's given to have treat- ment, Miss Lucy. He's got to be hospitalized," began Meredith.

But Lucy jerked both hands loose and put them over her quivering face and said through her fingers, "Oh, Dr. Merry—you scared the living daylights out of me! If that's all—"

"You don't understand, Miss Lucy," said Meredith painfully. "It isn't a simple thing that we can cope with at the Jonathan Blake Memorial. It's a disease that will have to be treated in an army hos- pital, and he may have to be gone several months. I'm going with him. We are leaving this after- noon."

Lucy Butler stared at her, her control regained, and now a puzzled look of resentment in her wide eyes.

"But why—what could possibly be wrong with Jerry, Dr. Merry?" she protested. "Some little simple thing, maybe—but why, he's strong as a horse, and his appetite is good. There must be some sort of mis- take."

"I wish with all my heart there were, Miss Lucy," said Meredith wearily. "But there isn't. I took his papers to Washington and one of the best doctors in the country—" in association with several other doctors—agree unanimously on a diagnosis that orders him to a gov- ernment hospital at once."

Lucy was watching her closely, with the slow dawning of an ugly suspicion in her eyes. "What is this queer thing that's the matter with Jerry?" she wanted to know at last.

"A tropical fever, Miss Lucy—"

Lucy made a sharp, angry ges- ture. "Oh, bosh! That boy hasn't any more got fever, tropical or other- wise, than I have!"

"Miss Lucy, Jerry's disease is—communicable."

Lucy caught her breath, and her hands twisted tightly in her ap- ron.

"Communi—you mean—it's catch- ing?" she stammered faintly.

"Very," said Meredith.

Lucy drew a breath and put her tired shoulders back, and her de- fiant chin high, and said, "Now I know there is some mistake. Be- cause I'm all right, and if any- body could catch something from Jerry, it would be me. Who else comes in as close contact with him as I do?"

"You are strong and sound, with a good constitution," Meredith point- ed out. "The people who are sus- ceptible are those who are run down physically, undernourished, sickly."

Lucy studied her, with wide, shocked eyes, and at last she asked very low, "You mean somebody has caught this—this tropical fever from Jerry?"

"I'm sorer than I can ever put into words to have to tell you, Miss Lucy, but the answer is—yes," said Meredith gravely and steadily.

Lucy could no longer doubt the truth of what Meredith said. Blind- ly she turned to the door and said, "I'll have to pack his bag." Her voice broke, but the next moment she was rigid once more, and still. "I won't come to town to see him off. I reckon he'd rather I didn't. It might upset him and I'm not sure I could keep from crying."

"You're very brave," said Mered- ith.

Lucy's mouth was taut, but her eyes were steady.

"I've had a lot of time to learn to be brave," she said calmly. "I guess I can go on being brave a little longer."

There was nothing Meredith could say, but as she turned to the door, Lucy said suddenly, raggedly, "You're—going with him, Dr. Merry?"

"Yes," said Meredith. "And I'll do everything I possibly can for him."

Lucy brushed such unneeded as- surance aside. "But there's one thing—will he—will he be coming back?"

The eager, thoughtless assurance, "Of course he will!" was trembling on Meredith's lips, until she saw the look in Lucy's eyes. She said in- stead, "I hope so, Miss Lucy. I think so!"

"Thank you, Dr. Merry," she said. "I like people to be honest with me. I can stand anything except lies!"

Meredith went out of the door, and as she did, Lucy turned and looked at the cake batter in the yellow mixing bowl. Suddenly her face quivered, and now that there was no longer anybody to see, she could drop her guard and give way to the emotion that clawed with steel prongs at her naked, mother's heart.

Chapter 21

Lucy's house was an old-fashioned frame house built on a foundation of fieldstone, which also made the two chimneys. There was an ell at the back, which housed the kitchen and the dining room, and so Meredith drove around to the back of the house, and parked. As she went up the back steps, to the wide veranda that ran across the back of the house and along the ell, the kitchen door opened and Lucy came out, shivering in the biting cold, wiping her hands anxiously on her neat gingham apron, greeting Meredith with shy pleasure, bustling her into the warm kitchen, spicy and fragrant with the smell of dinner cooking.

"I was just stirring up a cake," she said apologetically, as Meredith took the chair near the stove and spread her chilled hands to the grateful warmth.

Lucy Butler looked at her narrowly, and said, as she beat the cake batter expertly, "Who's sick out this way, Dr. Merry? I know you didn't drive all this way out just to see me—and during your office hours, too!"

"But I did drive out here to see you, Miss Lucy," said Meredith, bracing herself. "I'm afraid I've—bad news for you, Miss Lucy."

"Jerry?" she whispered, white-lipped. "Something's happened to Jerry—an accident. The roads are frozen—"

Meredith put her hands on those shaking hands, taking them away from the knotted apron strings, and saying swiftly, "It isn't an accident, Miss Lucy. Dr. Nichols gave Jerry a physical examination a few days ago—remember?"

Lucy looked at her with wide, frightened eyes, and was suddenly very still, like a woman turned to stone.

"I remember," she said faintly. "Well—Jerry's got to have treatment, Miss Lucy. He's got to be hospitalized—" began Meredith.

But Lucy jerked both hands loose and put them over her quivering face and said through her fingers, "Oh, Dr. Merry—you scared the living daylight out of me! If that's all—"

"You don't understand, Miss Lucy," said Meredith painfully. "It isn't a simple thing that we can cope with at the Jonathan Blake Memorial. It's a disease that will have to be treated in an army hospital, and he may have to be gone several months. I'm going with him. We are leaving this afternoon."

Lucy Butler stared at her, her control regained, and now a puzzled look of resentment in her wide eyes.

"But why—what could possibly be wrong with Jerry, Dr. Merry?" she protested. "Some little simple thing, maybe—but why, he's strong as a horse, and his appetite is good. There must be some sort of mistake."

"I wish with all my heart there were, Miss Lucy," said Meredith wearily. "But there isn't. I took his papers to Washington and one of the best doctors in the country—"

truth of what Meredith said. Blindly she turned to the door and said, "I'll have to pack his bag." Her voice broke, but the next moment she was rigid once more, and still. "I won't come to town to see him off. I reckon he'd rather I didn't. It might upset him and I'm not sure I could keep from crying."

"You're very brave," said Meredith.

Lucy's mouth was taut, but her eyes were steady.

"I've had a lot of time to learn to be brave," she said calmly. "I guess I can go on being brave a little longer."

There was nothing Meredith could say, but as she turned to the door, Lucy said suddenly, raggedly, "You're—going with him, Dr. Merry?"

"Yes," said Meredith. "And I'll do everything I possibly can for him."

Lucy brushed such unneeded assurance aside. "But there's one thing—will he—will he be coming back?"

The eager, thoughtless assurance, "Of course he will!" was trembling on Meredith's lips, until she saw the look in Lucy's eyes. She said instead, "I hope so, Miss Lucy. I think so!"

"Thank you, Dr. Merry," she said. "I like people to be honest with me. I can stand anything except lies!"

Meredith went out of the door, and as she did, Lucy turned and looked at the cake batter in the yellow mixing bowl. Suddenly her face quivered, and now that there was no longer anybody to see, she could drop her guard and give way to the emotion that clawed with steel prongs at her naked, mother's heart.

40-36 TILT TO
MEDICO QUINT

"Ben" Bream's inexperienced Gettysburg college courmen opened their season here Wednesday evening by dropping a thrilling 40-36 decision to the Carlisle Barracks quintet.

From start to finish the score was close at all times and the outcome was in doubt until the final whistle. The Bullets put up a hard fought battle and gave evidence that as the season progresses improvement is certain to be made.

Bobby March, former Gettysburg high star, captured the scoring honors with 18 tallies while scoring for the Medicos was fairly well distributed.

Bullets Take Lead
The collegians moved out in front in the first two minutes of play on goals by Pegg and Shepherd and held a 10-6 advantage at the quarter.

Carlisle tied the count on a pair of goals by Vanhoose at the start of the second period but a pair of goals and a foul by March put the Orange and Blue lads out in front again. At half time the Bream-men led 19-15.

The Medicos switched their line-up in the third period with good results and held the locals without a goal, six free tosses being the only Gettysburg tallies. Meanwhile the visitors swept ahead 29-15.

Thrilling Finish
The last period was a thriller throughout. The Medicos and Bullets matched points for the first five minutes and then March looped a one-hander to tie the count at 35-35 with three minutes remaining. Shepherd sent the Bullets ahead on a free toss but Vanhoose broke away for a field goal and Gearin sewed up the game with a toss from beneath the basket a few seconds later. As the game ended Burford was fouled and he made good his attempt.

The Bullets meet Western Maryland at Westminster Saturday.

NEW OXFORD HI
SPLITS GAMES

New Oxford high school's basketball teams divided a pair of games played Wednesday evening with Dover high on the latter's court.

Jack Miller's boys captured a thriller in the main event 30-29. The lead see-sawed continuously throughout with Dover trailing 9-4 at the end of the first period and then forging ahead 17-15 at half time.

New Oxford swept ahead 25-21 at the close of the third period only to have Dover rally in the early minutes of the last period. For the last four minutes of play both teams fought furiously and neither was able to score. J. Harr and Little topped their respective teams in points.

The New Oxford girls got off to a poor start in the first period when Dover took a 13-1 lead and eventually lost 35-19.

Littlestown will play at New Oxford Friday evening.

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Jan. 11 (AP)—As a result of letting down the eligibility bars for Navy trainees, some college athletic directors feel the situation may get out of hand after the war. "Something ought to be done about it before we have another Carnegie investigation," one of them said. . . . Just possibly he was annoyed because one of his few 4-F footballers had been "snatched" by another college. . . . Baseball clubs are holding back on mailing contracts until the last minute this year, waiting to see what will happen about manpower. . . . A Baltimore newspaper estimates that city will lose about $75,000 this year if the bookies shut down because of the racing ban. That's about what is collected in fines each year.

The Pyramid Bowl football game between the base hospital Rebels and the Weather Squadron hurricanes, scheduled for New Year's day at Calro, had to be postponed when it rained for about 30 hours before game time and flooded the field. . . . Since rain is a rarity there

PRO GRIDDERS DEFER ACTION

Chicago, Jan. 11 (AP)—The abrupt adjournment of the National Football league's annual meeting has focused the dimming professional sports' spotlight on baseball. . . . Notwithstanding, George Marshall, unpredictable owner of the Washington Redskins who walked out on the pro loop's final session yesterday, the football moguls adopted a wait-and-see policy on the proposed national work draft and 4-F crackdown.

No official explanation for the sudden adjournment of a four-day session scheduled to last through Saturday was given by the football league representatives. But they agreed to assemble again in New York the first week of April for their annual player draft and schedule making. One of the league coaches who asked anonymity, probably expressed the attitude of all concerned, save Marshall, in this way:

"It's a wise move. We are just like the rest of the public—don't know a thing about what part Uncle Sam wants us to play in helping to win the war. Until the government's wishes and desires are announced, I plan to sign up every able-bodied player I can find in the best interests of my team and professional football's future."

BULLETS DROP 40-36 TILT TO
MEDICO QUINT

"Hen" Bream's inexperienced Gettysburg college courtesan opened their season here Wednesday evening by dropping a thrilling 40-36 decision to the Carlisle Barrecks quintet.

From start to finish the score was close at all times and the outcome was in doubt until the final whistle.

The Bullets put up a hard fought battle and gave evidence that as the season progresses improvement is certain to be made.

Bobby March, former Gettysburg high star, captured the scoring honors with 18 tallies while scoring for the Medicos was fairly well distributed.

Bullets Take Lead
The collegians moved out in front in the first two minutes of play on goals by Pegg and Shepherd and held a 10-6 advantage at the quarter.

Carlisle tied the count on a pair of goals by Vanhoose at the start of the second period but a pair of goals and a foul by March put the Orange and Blue lads out in front again.

At half time the Bream-men led 19-15.

The Medicos switched their line-up in the third period with good results and held the locals without a goal, six free tosses being the only Gettysburg tallies. Meanwhile the visitors swept ahead 29-15.

Thrilling Finish
The last period was a thriller throughout. The Medicos and Bullets matched points for the first five minutes and then March looped a one-hander to tie the count at 35-35 with three minutes remaining.

Shepherd sent the Bullets ahead on a free toss but Vanhoose broke away for a field goal and Gearin sewed up the game with a toss from beneath the basket a few seconds later.

As the game ended Burford was fouled and he made good his attempt.

The Bullets meet Western Maryland at Westminster Saturday.

SPLITS GAMES

New Oxford high school's basketball teams divided a pair of games played Wednesday evening with Dover high on the latter's court.

Jack Miller's boys captured a thriller in the main event 30-29. The lead see-sawed continuously throughout with Dover trailing 9-4 at the end of the first period and then forging ahead 17-13 at half time.

New Oxford swept ahead 25-21 at the close of the third period only to have Dover rally in the early minutes of the last period. For the last four minutes of play both teams fought furiously and neither was able to score. J. Harr and Little topped their respective teams in points.

The New Oxford girls got off to a poor start in the first period when Dover took a 13-1 lead and eventually lost 35-19.

Littlestown will play at New Oxford Friday evening.

Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Jan. 11 (AP)—As a result of letting down the eligibility bars for Navy trainees, some college athletic directors feel the situation may get out of hand after the war.

"Something ought to be done about it before we have another Carnegie investigation," one of them said.

Just possibly he was annoyed because one of his few 4-P footballers had been "snatched" by another college.

Baseball clubs are holding back on mailing contracts until the last minute this year, waiting to see what will happen about manpower.

A Baltimore newspaper estimates that city will lose about $75,000 this year if the bookies shut down because of the racing ban.

That's about what is collected in fines each year.

THE INSIDE TRACK
The Pyramid Bowl football game between the base hospital Rebels and the Weather Squadron hurricanes, scheduled for New Year's day at Cairo, had to be postponed when it rained for about 30 hours before game time and flooded the field.

Chicago, Jan. 11 (AP)—The abrupt adjournment of the National Football league's annual meeting has focused the dimming professional sport's spotlight on baseball.

Notwithstanding, George Marshall, unpredictable owner of the Washington Redskins who walked out on the pro loop's final session yesterday, the football moguls adopted a wait-and-see policy on the proposed national work draft and 4-P crackdown.

No official explanation for the sudden adjournment of a four-day session scheduled to last through Saturday was given by the football league representatives. But they agreed to assemble again in New York the first week of April for their annual player draft and schedule making.

Chicago, Jan. 11 (AP)—The abrupt adjournment of the National Football league's annual meeting has focused the dimming professional sport's spotlight on baseball.

Notwithstanding, George Marshall, unpredictable owner of the Washington Redskins who walked out on the pro loop's final session yesterday, the football moguls adopted a wait-and-see policy on the proposed national work draft and 4-P crackdown.

No official explanation for the sudden adjournment of a four-day session scheduled to last through Saturday was given by the football league representatives. But they agreed to assemble again in New York the first week of April for their annual player draft and schedule making.

One of the league coaches who asked anonymity, probably expressed the attitude of all concerned, save Marshall, in this way.

"It's a wise move. We are just like the rest of the public—don't know a thing about what part Uncle Sam wants us to play in helping to win the war. Until the government's wishes and desires are announced, I plan to sign up every able-bodied player I can find in the best interests of my team and professional football's future."
